A Control: This shows the vortex-type energy that is present in the ceramic cup with no specimen.

B Control 2 This is taken using a different filter of my New Energy Vision software program of the ceramic cup energy showing even more detail of the vortex forces that are manifesting inside the container.

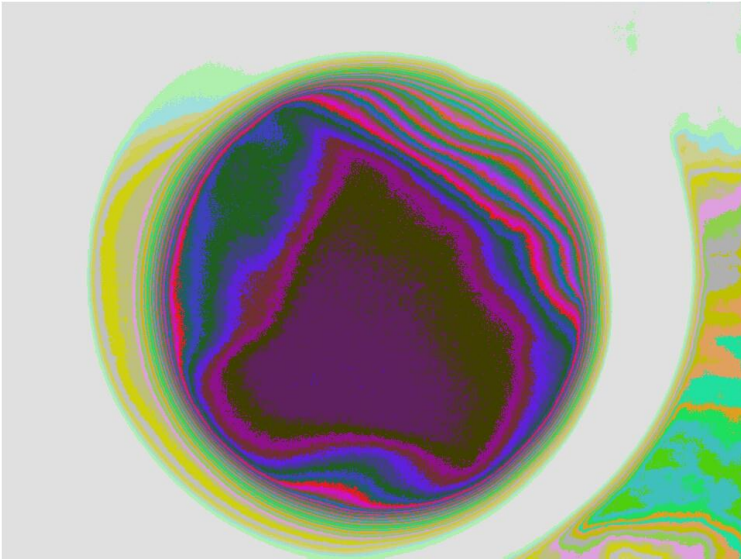

C This is a Control picture of tap water in a glass before placing on the ceramic cup.

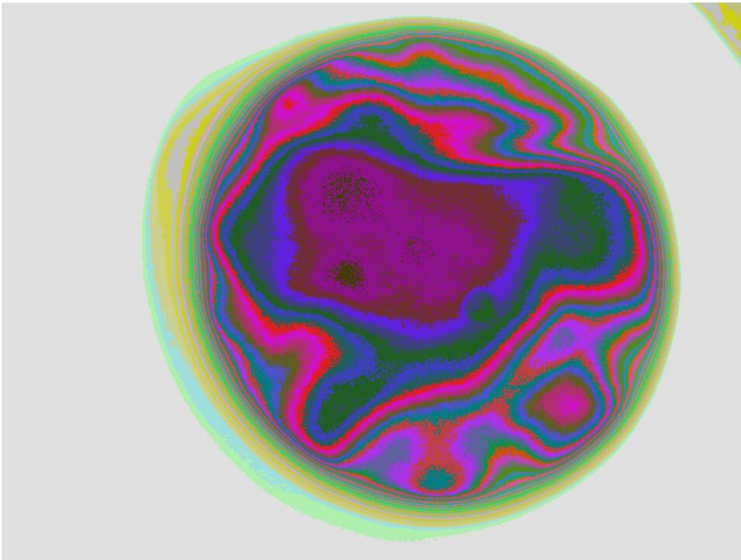

D This is a picture of the tap water having been placed on the ceramic cup taking on the vortex energy from the cup. Its taste changed dramatically to that resembling spring water.

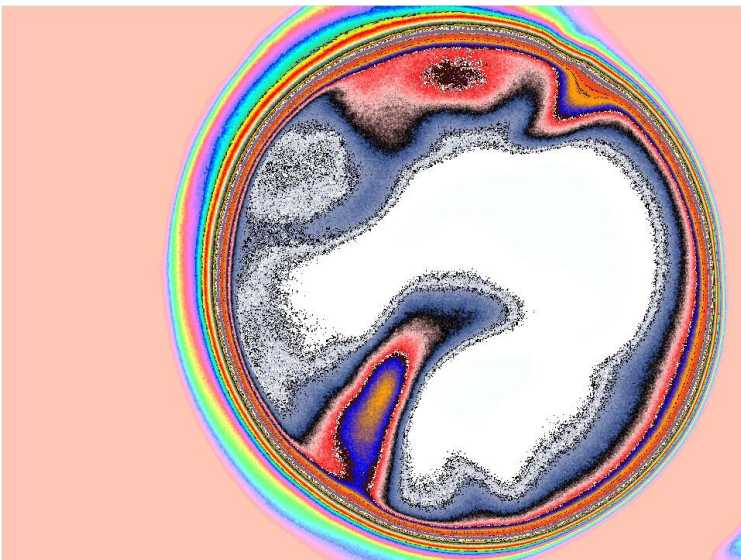

E This is a picture of spring water and its energy signature which is very similar in pattern to the tap water specimen after it had been exposed to the ceramic cup.

F This is the Control energy signature of a cup of freshly brewed black coffee.

G This is the changed energy signature of the cup of black coffee after having been placed on the ceramic cup.

H This is a further picture of the same specimen of black coffee taken with a different New Energy Vision filter showing a strong presence of white light in the coffee. The taste test, which is unfortunately to science a subjective test, produced a wonderful improvement of taste to the coffee.
